It will feature keynote speaker Dr. Scott Tinker, who is the Director of Bureau of Economic Geology at the University of Texas. He will be presenting his speech, "What Kern County Can Teach the World About Energy."

The event will feature discussions on Kern County's leadership in the energy industry. Attendees will also learn about the latest resources, tools, and information in the energy field and how they can use them to earn more money.

Tickets are $100 each and will include breakfast and a break for snacks.

Registration begins on Oct. 22, and tickets can be found at their website here \(http://kerncountyenergysummit.com/\).

No physical tickets are being sold. Tickets can only be purchased online.
